MADALYNNE IS TELLING STORY TO GRAND JURY

Sensational Crisis Comes
 Today in Great Murder Mystery

IS NEAR COLLAPSE

Erbstein Wins in Attempt to Get His Client Before Grand Jury

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—Madalynne Obenchain was unexpectedly invited to appear before the grand jury and tell her story in full, two hours before a motion for the dismissal of the murder charge against her was to be decided by Judge Reeve.

The invitation came from the grand jury and from District Attorney Thos. Lee Woolwine. It created a sensation at the court house. Rumors were current that the sudden move might presage the dropping of all charges against Madalynne in connection with the shooting of John Belton Kennedy.

"Mrs. Obenchain accepts!" thundered Charles Erbstein, her attorney, when he was informed of the invitation as he was entering the court house. "This is her 'big chance.' A report came from the jail that Madalynne was in a state of complete collapse. Erbstein asked Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Biscailuz to investigate. Biscailuz returned with a report from the matron that Madalynne was very ill, confined to bed and with her head in ice packs.

"It makes no difference," Erbstein insisted excitedly. "Her liberty depends upon this. She's going before that grand jury if we have to carry her in on a stretcher."

"That's what you'll have to do," said Biscailuz.

"All right," Erbstein barked. "Get a cab or an ambulance." He disappeared for a conference with his client.

Madalynne was carried down from the jail a few moments. There was no doubt but that she was on the verge of absolute collapse.

"You can't take that woman away from here in the condition she's in!" Biscailuz said hotly.

"I most certainly will," Erbstein said. "Everything depends upon this. I have an ambulance on the way here now." Madalynne, seated in a big chair, trembled violently and seemed but semi-conscious.

"Oh, I will go—I must—I must!" she moaned. "It means so much. Dear God, I must!" Tears welled to her eyes.

"Very well," Biscailuz said shortly, addressing Erbstein. "But you won't take her in an ambulance. I will get a private car."

Biscailuz immediately returned with Sheriff Tager, his superior. Traeger, Biscailuz, Erbstein, Mrs. Obenchain and a reporter for the United Press entered Traeger's car and drove away. Madalynne suffered a chill on the brief trip and came near fainting.

"What do you mean by bringing a woman in that condition here?" indignantly demanded Chief Deputy Dornan at the door of the grand jury room. Erbstein pushed him aside without a word and aided in carrying Madalynne within. At 12:25 p. m. Madalynne was for the first time telling her story of the events leading to her arrest for the midnight killing of her sweetheart, John Belton Kennedy.

Ten minutes later she was removed from the jury room. The same party re-entered Traeger's machine and returned to the jail. "Oh, I wanted to tell them all," Madalynne murmured to the United Press representative. "I wanted to talk and talk—but I couldn't." She, inferred it was her physical condition and not lack of willingness that cut short her statement to the grand jury.

"If I could only have told them—if they could only know it all—everything!" she sobbed. At the jail she fainted. Semi-conscious, she was carried to her cell.

With less than an hour before a motion to dismiss the case against Madalynne was to come before Judge Reeve, appearances were that the hearing would have to be postponed. It would be impossible for Madalynne to again leave her bed today, according to a report by physicians and the matron. Her condition is described as serious. A report that she was near death was denied.

Ambassador George Harvey
 Tells British Last Night
 in Address

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Both Great Britain and France have been warned to abandon all hope of the United States being drawn into an alliance with either country. The British were officially apprised of the futility of such a desire by Ambassador Harvey, in a speech before the Liverpool chamber of commerce last night. The French received similar official advice from Paris newspaper correspondents now in Washington to attend the arms conference.

Tragedy in Life; Assassins Abroad; Read Advertisements

Today's news brings with it more tragedy. The body of a 2-day-old infant was found in a Glendale garage. It had been placed there by some misguided young woman, apparently, or by the man who brought about the tragedy in her life, which will be a greater tragedy if the police find her. Infinitely better it would have been for her to have nourished the child, even though it was perhaps what the world calls "illegitimate." Somewhere there is a very unhappy young woman.

The news dispatches bring information that Premier Hara of Japan has been assassinated. The tallest trees are, most exposed to the winds and lucky indeed is the man who stands out above his brothers if he dies a natural death.

After you have read the news in today's Glendale Press, turn to the advertisements, read them all. Read the want ads too. They are "newsy," always. And by all means, read the editorial page.

CITY COUNCIL WILL AID CHAMBER IN FLOOD CONTROL

City Manager Reeves Presents
 Plan at Meeting
 Last Night

City Manager Reeves asked the city council Thursday night to pass a resolution endorsing the action of the chamber of commerce committees, of which he is a member, in their efforts to secure permanent protection for the city in flood control for the Verdugo wash. This committee met with the council as a committee of the whole before the regular council meeting and explained their plan for permanent protection. The resolution was adopted.

The plan of planting trees in the wash to divert the water in the event of a flood will be adopted, is the general opinion of the committee. The plan advocates planting two lines of trees, the first line to be of eucalyptus and the second of some deep-rooted tree such as the sycamore. The present protection, a structure of iron pipes, wire and brush, is considered inadequate in the event of an unusually rainy season. It has been pointed out by engineers that this structure would wash out under a heavy head of water and acting as a dam would divert the water from the wash into the city.

A widespread strike of bituminous coal miners today apparently depended on the action of operators toward the check-off system enjoined by Federal Judge Anderson. Indiana operators have decided against the check-off and the fields in that state are practically tied up.

SEWER WORK IS ORDERED DOWN TOWN DISTRICT

B. Zanich Gets Contract for Sum of $25,378.33
 Last Night

DAIRIES ARE LICENSED

License Ordinance Amended to Take in Many
 New Lines

Bids for installing a sewer in the business district of Glendale were read at the council meeting Thursday night and the contract was awarded to B. Zanich, whose bid was $25,378.33.

The permits of J. F. Smith, 376 North Orange street and Ernest A. Main, South Olive street, Burbank to conduct dairies were granted on the recommendation of Inspector Hollenbeck. It is necessary for Mr. Main, who conducts his dairy in Burbank, to secure a permit from the city of Glendale because it is his intention to sell the greater portion of the product of the dairy here.

The transfer of $8,500 from the public service budget fund to the general budget fund and $300 from the general service fund to the general budget fund to cover the city payroll for October was sanctioned.

The ordinance amending the license ordinance was passed. The amendment regulates the licenses charged for conducting several businesses here. One section of the new ordinance places the fee charged sightseeing busses and busses used to convey passengers on land purchasing trips at $10 per month. This fee entitles the owners of such busses to employ one solicitor to distribute literature and solicit patronage for the company on the street. The solicitor must have his or her name filed with the city clerk at the time of application for the license is made. Other solicitors in excess of the one allowed by the ordinance will have to pay the same fee as charged for the operation of the buss.

James W. Pearson presented a petition protesting the passage of an ordinance prohibiting advertising signs on the streets of the city. The ordinance had not been introduced and on motion of Councilman Stephenson the ordinance and the protest were ordered filed. Several special demands covering salaries for officials employed under the present salary ordinance who were employed before the passage of the ordinance were allowed.

HARRY PHILLIPS IS KIDNAPPER SAY OMAHA POLICE

Wild Spender is Sought for Taking Lad to Chicago
 From Omaha

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Chicago authorities today received a request from Omaha officials to take Harry M. Phillips, self styled "spender" into custody on a charge of kidnapping. Phillips arrived here with Rolla Mock, an Omaha newsboy.

Police found the 15-year-old newsboy at a hotel. Phillips had failed to show up shortly before noon, although Mock said they came to Chicago together.

The newsboy said Phillips had promised him a "big job" in Chicago. Phillips first appeared on the horizon a week ago in Los Angeles when he declared he had made a fortune in Mexican mines and was out to spend it, making people happy.

He was unable to furnish any particulars about where he made his money. He next showed up in Omaha and told of giving large sums to newsboys and bellhops. The newsies got together and found the total amount they could find that Phillips had spent was $17.30 in small change. He stayed at a third rate hotel and grabbed his meals off the one arm lunch counters.

Phillips refused to comment on reports that he was press agenting a new movie film soon to be released. Detectives were patiently waiting for the "spender" to show up at his hotel, several hours after they had discovered the boy Omaha authorities claimed he kidnaped.

PERSHING'S DENIAL ADDED TO FLAMES WATSON CHARGES

Commander Says Soldiers
 Not Executed Without Trial in France

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 4.—"It is the most outrageous and untrue accusation that possibly could be made and is without foundation," said General John J. Pershing here today, referring to charges advanced by Senator Thomas Watson of Georgia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A show-down on Senator Watson's charges that American soldiers were hanged without trial in France was demanded today by Senator Edge, New Jersey, when the senate convened. Edge demanded that Watson give the American people evidence to substantiate his charges.

Referring to photographs of a gallows published in a New Jersey newspaper, which Watson yesterday asked to have reproduced in the congressional record, Edge declared that two American soldiers who had been hanged on the gibbet had been tried by courts martial and found guilty of murder and criminal assault. Edge declared that the case could not be camouflaged. He reiterated that Watson owed it to himself and his country to substantiate his charges.

Replying to Edge, Watson declared that the picture referred to by Edge showed that the negro soldier was hanged in the American uniform. "Since when," he asked, "has it been legal to disgrace the uniform by hanging it at the end of a halter? I have no other instances to present to the senate. One officer had a soldier's heart penetrated with a bayonet. I have a constituent who saw the brutal murder and will have his affidavits here as soon as I can get it." Watson referred contemptuously to Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, who in a public statement had branded Watson's charges as untrue. "Little Newt had to get in," said Watson.

A sweeping investigation of the sensational charges made by Senator Watson was re-ordered by the senate without a dissenting vote.

GERMANY HAS NEW PAYMENT PLANS

Plan Outlined by Official to Secretary Mellon in Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Germany has a new proposal for meeting her reparations payments. It was learned today that the plan has been outlined by State Secretary Karl Bergman of the German finance ministry to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and the state department. Today it was to be presented to Benjamin Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank, New York.

The plan involves no sanction of the United States government, American officials, however, are interested in the proposal but so far are not revealing the details, apparently on the theory that such discussion might be taken publicly as a governmental "boost" for the idea.

The scheme, however, was indicated to be sound. It evidently would bolster up the fallen mark and would be designed to meet favor with the Allies.

Bergman is known to have consulted Secretary Hoover who for a long time has been interested in the recovery of mid-Europe on the theory that America and the rest of the world are influenced disadvantageously by existing conditions there. Today Bergman was scheduled to meet in New York Benjamin Strong, governor of the New York Federal reserve board. Information to United Press designated Bergman's mission as highly important.

INFANT'S BODY FOUND HERE HID IN GARAGE

C. B. Anthony Calls Police to Garage Rear of House This Morning

IS DEAD OVER WEEK

Attempt Made to Burn Body is Believed by Police
 Here Today

While working around the garage in the rear of his home at 517 West Park avenue today, C. B. Anthony found the body of a two day old boy wrapped in an undershirt and newspapers. The child has been dead about a week. Mr. Anthony said that he noticed the bundle in the garage for several days but had paid no attention to it. He thought it was the property of the owners of the garage.

This morning Mr. Anthony entered the garage to search for some burlap and noticed the package near the window. He opened it and found the body. The window of the garage was broken and it is the opinion of the police that the body was thrown through the broken window.

There are marks on the little body that lead the police to believe that an attempt to destroy it by burning had been made. The skin on the arms and other portions of the body was broken and peeled off and the flesh discolored as if by fire.

When the body was found it was wrapped in a portion of a woman's undershirt and papers. The bundle was tied with heavy cord. The police were notified and Officer McLain brought in the body.

The county coroner was notified and the body turned over to the Pulliam & Kieffer undertaking establishment where it is being held pending an autopsy this afternoon. Police and detectives have been detailed to further investigate the case.

BURCH DEFENSE HAS ALIBI FOR GUN IN KENNEDY CASE

Declare Gun Used Against
 Burch in Water Over
 Two Years

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—Defense attorneys for Arthur C. Burch today prepared to shatter one of the strongest bits of evidence marshaled by the prosecution, it was learned exclusively by the United Press. The famous "murder gun" found on the beach at Santa Monica shortly after the mysterious assassination of John Belton Kennedy, had been there for two years, the defense will assert. Police department records showing that a car load of such guns were dumped from the pier at Santa Monica two years ago, have been unearthed by Paul Schenck, chief counsel for Burch.

The weapons were confiscated in various police raids and were thrown into the sea to get rid of them, the records show. The gun was turned over to the police by a morning newspaper which had offered a reward for recovery of the "murder gun." The prosecution has been preparing to contend that Burch threw it into the sea on his way to Los Angeles from Beverly Glen, where Kennedy was killed.

MINE WORKERS ARE GRANTED APPEAL

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—United Mine Workers of America late today were granted an appeal from the "check-off" injunction ordered by Federal Judge Anderson of Indianapolis. The appeal was granted by the circuit court of appeals, with Judges Evans, Baker and Ailschuler on the bench. Stay of execution of Judge Anderson's injunction was ordered until the appeal is heard November 16.

Attorney Henry Warrum represented the United Mine Workers in court. Judge Anderson issued an injunction forbidding mine operators from deducting union dues from the men's pay, which was provided for in the union agreements. Thirty-five thousand miners in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois left their work in protest against the injunction and a general mine strike is threatened.

HIGHEST MARK OF LIFE TERMERS

SAN QUENTIN, Nov. 4.—Hubert Barnett, aged Brown and Arthur Kempf have arrived here from San Jose and began serving life sentences for the murder of Charles J. Hines. Addition of these three swells the total number of life termers in San Quentin to 278. Warden Johnson, while having no figures available for comparison, said he believes this is the greatest number of life termers in any single prison in the United States and possibly the world.

Romance of Bagdad Bride Checked By Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Importing a wife from a foreign country has its difficulties, according to Shimon Sargis, who, after paying for the transportation of his intended bride from Mesopotamia, getting arrested for speeding and kidnapping, paying out good money for attorney's fees, and being involved in other ways, finds himself just as wifeless as he ever was. The secretary of labor has given the final jolt to Sargis.

The story starts way back in the days before the World War when Sargis left his home in Persia and came to the United States, leaving behind all the acquaintances of his youth. Among the friendships which he had formed was that of a family named Polos, consisting of a father, mother and a small daughter, black-eyed and pretty, but still a mere child. During the ten years that followed, little Blandina Polos forgot that she ever knew Shimon Sargis, but not so easily was the memory of the little child effaced from Sargis' recollection.

Meantime, things had gone hard with the little family of Assyrians in Persia. The war came, and with it renewed attacks and religious persecutions on the part of the Turks and Kurds. Father Polos was killed, and the mother and little Blandina wandered from place to place with other refugees, arriving three years ago at Bagdad, where they were fortunate in having relatives or others in America to assist them, left for the United States.

Then one day Mother Polos received a letter from Sargis. He loved little Blandina, now approaching womanhood, and he wanted to marry her. He sent money to pay her passage. Blandina did not remember him, but what did that matter? Times were hard in Bagdad and there was no relief in sight. Could anything be worse than the refugee camp in which they had been living for three years? So reasoned mother and daughter, and the question was decided.

Wherein Sargis Wins
The mother's instinct to protect her child was strong in Mother Polos, and while realizing the good offer of Sargis, she thought to further safeguard her daughter by appealing to her nephew, David Jacobs, who had been in this country 12 years, and who had become a citizen. In quaint little-used language, she mother wrote Jacobs asking him to send for Sargis, then living in Bridgeport, Conn., and "if you like the young man you can use your judgment in giving the girl to him in marriage."

The next chapter in the little drama was enacted at the immigration station in Boston, when Blandina arrived with friends. When they arrived they were dismayed to find that the 2 per cent immigration law prevented them from entering the country. Cousin Jacobs, meantime, had received the appeal of Mother Polos and was awaiting Blandina with open arms, nor did Sargis forget that his prospective bride was arriving on the steamer. Then, when the joyful news was received from Washington that the Assyrians arriving in excess of the quota were to be allowed to come into the United States, there were too many desiring that Blandina should make her home with them. Perhaps the mother's wishes would have been carried out from the beginning had the immigration authorities known of the trust that was given by her mother to David Jacobs, but they did not. Blandina was admitted in company with David Elia and his family, who were bringing her to her betrothed.

When the immigration station doors closed behind this immigrant party, Sargis was waiting with an automobile, and away they sped. Upon learning that Blandina was slipping away, Cousin Jacobs was furious. He hailed a taxi and started in hot pursuit. He caught the party and had the young lover arrested for kidnapping. It mattered little to him that he was arrested for speeding.

Wherein Jacobs Wins
The court held hearings and meantime turned Blandina over to the House of the Good Shepherd. The action was taken seemed to revolve upon the girl's age. Her passport showed that she was but 14; she looked 16. Sargis claimed she was 17. Sargis' father was willing to keep the girl for his son until it was proved that she was old enough to marry, but the court, after admitting as evidence the two letters from Mother Polos to David Jacobs, decided that Blandina should be turned over to her cousin.

This decision did not satisfy Shimon Sargis. He appealed his case to Secretary of Labor Davis and insisted that something be done by the immigration authorities to secure to him the bride he had imported. The immigration bureau ordered the girl arrested and returned to the commissioner of immigration so that the case of her admission might again be heard, and the facts determined as to who had the best interest of the girl at heart. Both sides were heard, the life's history of each was told—stories of immigrants who years before had come to America and had partaken of its advantages and found them good.

The final result was the upholding of the court's decree that in view of Blandina's youth she should be given into the care of her cousin, who promised to care for her, and allow her some three or four years hence to decide whether she should or should not become the bride of Shimon Sargis.

American Troops Are Lambasted By Germany

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Frequent laudatory articles in the German press contrasting the behavior of the American troops of occupation in Coblenz with that of the French and British forces have proven too much for the Germania, Chancellor Wirth's organ, to bear. In a leading article by a staff reporter, the Germania tries to show that the Americans aren't as angelic as they have been painted.

"It is a common impression that the conditions in American occupied territory are more favorable and bearable for the German population than in the French or British areas. This belief that Americans have not caused the population in their zone as much annoyance as it has suffered in neighboring areas is far from true. Unfortunately one must say that the case is quite the opposite."

Germany then follows with a long article on the inexorable demands of the American officers; the leading incidents in the list of atrocities run as follows:

1. "An American officer demanded that one of the rooms in his lodging be refurnished with new wallpaper. His wife picked out the wallpaper, which cost 250 marks a rod, which any German would consider expensive and luxurious. After half year the American woman decided that the tails of the Birds of Paradise printed on the wallpaper were of an unpleasant yellow color. She demanded that the City Commandant order a painter, who repainted the tails; the question of the cost, naturally, meant nothing to her."

2. "Another landlady complains that a family consisting of two persons requires no less than 32 towels and 12 to 15 tablecloths monthly."

Poor Boys Who Made Grade To Prosperity

In one of the magazines there was a story printed recently under a heading, "Where They Were at Thirty," writes Richard Spillane in Commerce and Finance. It dealt with men who have come to be national figures in industrial affairs in America. "Where They Were at Twenty" would be more interesting.

The present writer was in New York recently to see the man who is head of one of the greatest railroads in the world and representative of John D. Rockefeller's big interests in transportation lines.

"Where were you at 20?" the newspaper man asked.

"Telegraph operator at a way station on a railroad in Arkansas," was the reply.

"Where did you begin?" the greatest publisher in America, if not in the world, was asked.

"At 12 years of age, with a capital of 3 cents," was the answer.

Are the opportunities today as good as in days gone by? Assuredly, there never was greater opportunity. From out of the ranks of the office boys, the clerks, the railroad employees, the roddmen, the students, the shopmen, the factory workers, the salesmen of

TUJUNGA CHAMBER HAS 354 MEMBERS

The annual meeting of the chamber will be held November 15 and nine new directors will be chosen. This is an increase of four directors. The financial standing of the chamber is excellent as all debts are paid and the treasurer has $260 in the treasury.

The chamber voted to request that the county supervisors appoint several deputy sheriffs for the district around Tujunga and D. A. Johnston was chosen as one of the deputies. The others will be selected by a committee.

Charles E. Kimpell of the Monte Vista Athletic Club will establish headquarters in Tujunga.

Eugene Manchester and wife, of Boston, will spend the winter in Tujunga.

Holmes Hagaman and family are en route from Illinois to Tujunga, where they will locate.

FRIENDLY FIGHT WAS ALL IT WAS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—After arguing the Irish question with two Swedes, a German and a Jew and later displaying much fistie prowess, Harry Kelley and Frank Murphy, Irishmen, "mixed it" for a while between themselves.

When the two gent's names were called in the municipal court only Murphy appeared. He was swathed in bandages.

"Where's your opponent?" questioned Judge Fleming.

"He's not able to be here, y'ur honor."

"You don't mean to tell me that four men licked two Irishmen?" exclaimed Judge Fleming.

"No, y'ur honor, it was a hot battle," continued Murphy. "Soon all of that crew were on the ground, exceptin' Kelley and myself. Then we went on with the fight, and Kelley lost."

"Discharged," ruled the court.

ENJOYING A SHOW BUSTED HIS PIPE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Smoke issued from the side pocket of the coat on a man who hurried out of a local theater. He called for water as he turned the pocket wrong side out.

"I'm not thinking of the coat," he said, dashing water over the smoldering cloth, matches tobacco and other materials.

"Look at the stem of my brand new pipe!" he exclaimed, as his pipe, with a good-sized coal glowing in it, fell onto the sidewalk. In the fall from his burning pocket the pipe's amber stem broke into small pieces. The trouble started when the fellow unconsciously placed the lighted pipe in his pocket while enjoying the show.

SHOOT DICE TO SEE WHO SHOULD BUY

GENEVA, N. Y., Nov. 4.—They were from St. Louis, Mo., and Memphis, Tenn., respectively. Their names: Harold E. Gormley and Henry Morton. Arrested here on a charge of gambling, theirs was an effective story told Judge Dittmars, indignantly told, too. It was the 30 cents which the officer found on the ground as the pair tossed forth a set of dice with a suspicious "come seven" sound emanating from their direction, had been placed there by a friend; the cubes were being rolled to see which of the two should buy "near beer." It was well told. The judge discharged them.

SCHOOL BOOKS ARE BANE OF HIS LIFE

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4.—Lee Gentry, affectionately known as the "Babe" Ruth of domestic tranquility, hung up a new record here when the family doctor announced "a boy," adding the 27th to his household. There are 16 living out of the 27. Eight are at home and eight are scattered throughout the United States. The last is reported as doing very well. He is strong and healthy. Gentle, for many years a stock dealer at Inman Yards, is now the proprietor of a cafe. He says the school book problem keeps him "broke."

BONUS BILL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The soldier bonus bill will pass both Houses of Congress by an overwhelming majority next year, Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, predicted in the senate today.

world ever has known, and who died leaving 65 million dollars, was a hired hand in a country store.

John Carty, one of the principal administrative officers of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, rose from a $5 a week job in the company's Boston office.

D. C. Jackling, the biggest figure in copper mining in America, was a farm hand in St. Clair county, Missouri, and got his start educationally by studying at night by candle light in the attic of the rude shack he called "home."

Michael Idvorsky Pupin, who developed the long distance telephone, was a porter in a New York store. Before that he was a farm hand.

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago, the largest financial institution outside of New York, started as an office boy for a concern in Panama, Ia.

A list like this could be continued until columns were filled.

For every big job there is in America today there will be two 20 years from now.

There never was better opportunity for the bright youngster or the bright young man. It does not matter what you are today, office boy or bank clerk, farm hand or salesman, shop attendant or truckman. For, in this country more than in any other, can it be said with truth:

I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

BORAH'S PLAN OF FRENCH SBA

Declares Briand Proposition Does Not Meet With Favor Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—There is danger that the arms conference "may lead to the same kind of disarmament that took place at Versailles—not disarmament at all, but misunderstandings which compel unilateral disarmaments." Senator Borah of Idaho warned today in an interview with the United Press. This danger would become extremely real and menacing, Borah said if the French idea of disarming, as expressed by Premier Briand, were allowed to prevail in the conference.

Briand, Borah said, is willing to cut France's army only if the United States and other nations agree to guarantee soldiers to compensate for their efforts, or naval disarmaments, where there is an opportunity to accomplish substantial results.

TECHAU TAVERN IS NOW IN LIMELIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Albert C. Morrison, manager of the Techau Tavern, a well-known San Francisco cafe, was today sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Federal Judge Dooling on a charge of maintaining a place where liquor was sold. A similar sentence was given V. E. Lardi, waiter captain, who was jointly charged in the indictment with Morrison. The attorneys for the two men immediately announced that an appeal would be taken from the verdict. Bail was set at $4,000 each.

AERO BURGLARS IN BERLIN IS LATEST

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Burglars from the clouds looted the warehouse of the firm of Heilbrenner, in the Mohrenstrasse, carrying off carpets and tapestry to the tune of $6400.

A large hole had been made in the roof of the building through which the thieves had effected their entrance. An hour after the discovery of the theft, three men, one of them a local merchant named Shultz, were seen to step out of an airplane near the frontier.

They were interrogated by the police and their machine was found to be filled with valuable curios and other articles, including the stolen carpets. The men confessed they had stolen the goods, which they had loaded on an airplane, also stolen. The machine was kept in waiting in a neighboring field. The intention of the thieves was to fly over the border into Belgium.

ITALIAN TENOR IS RAVING LOYALIST

PARIS, Nov. 4.—According to Manfredi Polverosi, an Italian tenor, just back from New York, there is no such thing as an American boxing champion. They are all Italians. Recently Polverosi stated that Dempsey was an Italian and that his name is Demsi. Now he charges that all other American boxers are really Italians who emigrated to America years ago, as they could find no outlet for their boxing abilities in Italy. Thus Pete Herman, bantamweight champion, came from Italy, and his correct name is Pietro Gulotta. Johnny Wilson, middleweight, hails from Naples and was known there as Joseph Panico. Ernest Rice is in reality Riso Ernesto. Flynn, who fought Dempsey, is also Italian and was known as Chiariglione. Bob Martin was Roberto Martini and Jack Sharkey's real name is Serrano. Frenchmen are wondering if the Italian tenor will not find that Carpenter was once Italian and had such a name as Giorgio Carpentiero.

EXCHANGE SHOTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Shots were exchanged between police and striking milk wagon drivers in a pitched battle, the milk wagon drivers having made an attack on route wagons of the "Birden" Co. at Brooklyn this afternoon. Two policemen were wounded and two arrests were made.

An inventor in Japan has succeeded in preparing cement from coal refuse, the cost of making which is but one-fourth of the present article.

Germany Fed Up On Wars During This Generation

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—"Nie wieder Krieg"—"never again war." This is the slogan of an ever-increasing army in Germany, the city of men who have come to a realization finally that war is a losing game for all concerned; the appeal of women who suffered through the German "turnip winter;" the call of children cheated of their rightful heritage—a sound body—through war shortages.

Germany, as a whole, doesn't want any more war—not this generation at least. It is fed up on war. This is a firm conviction after talks with men in all walks of life in Germany the past two years and a careful observation of the trend of thought and affairs in the new Germany, says Carl D. Groat of the United Press.

France's alleged fear of a new German invasion is, at the moment, a senseless bugaboo, according not only to Germans, but also to English officers.

The one thing that can make that fear an actuality, according to many authorities, is a further growth of "French chauvinism and militarism." Germany—undoubtedly forgetting the ravages her armies made in France—falls perhaps to see the ground for French anxiety and bitterness. On the other hand, the selection is settling even deeper in the German psychology that France, if unhindered by England, would dismember Germany, leaving her a bloodless land, without economic strength. Germany is bitter over France's play in Upper Silesia. Germany resents constant French pressure in the west, and thinks France would emasculate the German industrial region.

These and other things make the average German feel that France is trying to take more than her pound of flesh. At the same time, the average man forgets the republic at the start, trimmed and backed and filled, seeking out in the treaty until Wirth came forward with the pronouncement that Germany was going to play fair and proceed to fulfill Wirth has somewhat swung around the French attitude.

But there is in Germany today a smoldering hatred of France, which perhaps in the next generation—not in this—will lead to a new war.

Germany at present is not in a position to wage war. She is disarmed. I say this on the authority of no less a personage than the British General Bingham, of the allied disarmament commission.

Just now, German industry is too busy trying to capture world markets and meet reparations to think about any more war. And the "man in the street" is even less anxious for a war than perhaps his capitalist master. I have queried groups of laboring men as to whether they wanted any more war. They all agreed they didn't. On one occasion I expressed doubt as to their sincerity and asked if they were willing to sign their names to a sworn statement. They took the matter seriously, and soon brought me a paper with their names, swearing they wanted no more war, and saying the document could be used in any way I wished.

The new Germany has had enough of war.

Ambassador to France Reported Engaged to Anne Morgan

Miss Anne Morgan and Myron T. Herrick

In exclusive society circles in Paris there is a report that Ambassador Myron T. Herrick is engaged to marry Anne Morgan. Although denials have been made on both sides it is stated that the engagement has been known among the exclusive folk for the past three weeks. Mr. Herrick has been a widower for a year. Miss Morgan is said to be in New York at the present time. The photo is one of the most recent ones made of the daughter of the late world-known financier.

PROCEED IMPROVE ON VINE STREET

City Council Hears Various Petitions at Session Last Night

W. L. Truitt presented a petition to the city council last night regarding proceedings for the improvement of Vine street from San Fernando road to Tenth street. City Attorney Doodard and City Engineer Hill were instructed to start the proceeding at once. The same action was taken on a petition to start improvement of Justin street from Sixth to Eighth streets.

Mr. Phillips of the F. P. Newport Land company communicated with the council and asked to have an alley at the rear of Onchie Way on La Canada boulevard vacated. He expressed willingness to stand necessary expense of vacating the property. The matter was referred to City Engineer Hill for approval as Councilman Stephenson said that while he thought vacating the alley was all right, he believed the council should investigate before such proceedings begin.

A deed from W. H. Bullis and wife to certain property in Glendale was offered the city and accepted.

CIVILIZATION IS IN GREAT DANGER

House of Commons Welcomes Chance to Make Wars Less Possible

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British house of commons unanimously approved the Washington arms conference this afternoon. A resolution expressing parliament's approval of the meeting was adopted, following debate, without a dissenting vote.

The discussion was without controversy and it quickly became apparent that the house would overwhelmingly approve the motion. John H. Clynes, laborite and former food controller, who introduced the resolution, in a speech pictured the horrors of future wars and said that civilization might even be destroyed in the event of another conflict. He lamented the fact that 20 per cent of the national income is spent on armaments.

BANK DEPOSITS ON INCREASE DAILY

WORTHAM, Tex., Nov. 4.—When bank deposits in a quiet, little farming town, as Wortham, increase at the rate of $100,000 a day, it certainly can be taken as an indication that something more than farming is going on in the trade territory around the town. This is the record for the past week of the banking houses of Wortham.

Asked the source of this vast amount of new revenue, bankers declared that its all coming from the sale of leases which developed a big demand just after the completion of the Humphrey's company's Meador well, four miles northeast of the town. Most of this money is expected to find more or less permanent lodgment in vaults of the Wortham banks, because a large part of it goes to the land owners, and practically all of it to persons who have interests in the town or the surrounding new oil fields.

Wages in Germany are about 30 per cent higher now than during the period of the war.

Dew of Death To Fall On Armies In Next War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Dew of Death! The next war will be more horrible than the last world catastrophe! This prediction frequently heard from not only army and navy experts but from the average citizen, seems certain of fulfillment unless some summary action is taken by the forthcoming Washington conference to prohibit or restrict the use of these latest war devices.

One of the three main subjects to be taken up at the conference under the broad question of limitation of armament is: "Rules for control of new agencies of warfare." The Chemical Warfare Service of the American Army is believed to possess today the deadliest poisonous gas in the world. This is called "Lewisite," a gas developed during the latter part of the war by Winford Lee Lewis, a professor of chemistry of Northwestern University, but never used in the last war.

A quantity of this gas, equivalent to three drops, reaching a man's body in liquid form, will kill. Lewisite is even more slowly than does the Lewisite, thus retaining its power for injury by burning longer, but Lewisite is the deadliest of the two.

A picture can thus be gained of air plans, in a future war, letting down this "dew of death" on armies in the field, and on cities in back of the firing line, should this be resorted to.

The Chemical Warfare Service knows that clothing, soaked with heavy linseed oil, can be made to protect the wearer from this gas, but it is also equally true that men cannot stand the wearing of such clothing for long. Complete protection from poisonous gas seems impossible.

Pointing out the importance of the use of poisonous gas in war, Brigadier General Amos Fries of the Chemical Warfare Service, said:

"The use of gas makes aviation ten times as powerful as it would ordinarily be, and doubles the value of every other branch of warfare."

"The importance of gas is evidenced by the fact that 27 per cent of the American casualties during the war was caused by this new agency of warfare, then, too, the casualties caused by all the weapons of infantry—the bayonet, the rifle, the hand grenade, the machine gun—were only slightly more than the gas casualties."

"The use of gas is particularly valuable as a means of defense. Imagine an enemy fleet, bringing up the army of the hostile country, to attack the United States. Our airplanes would go out and bomb the enemy ships with explosives and gas."

"If, after this, the enemy forces did succeed in getting up to, or on, the American shore, a rain of poisonous gases could be let down on them in such magnitude that they could go no farther. So, I believe, such use of gas would make it impossible for an attacking army to get a foothold on American soil."

"Some other nations probably would be glad to know that we had pledged our selves not to use poisonous gas. 'I do not believe this government should enter into any agreement not to use gas while there is a possibility of this country being placed at the mercy of an outlaw nation breaking this pledge, as Germany did when she started the use of gas in the world war.'"

The destructiveness of the airplane has already been greatly increased since the world-war. Only a few days ago, the largest aerial bomb in the world was successfully tested by the ordnance department and the air service of the army at the Ordnance Proving Ground at Aberdeen, Md. It was 13½ feet long, 2 feet in diameter, weighed 4,200 pounds, and contained 2,000 pounds of T. N. T.

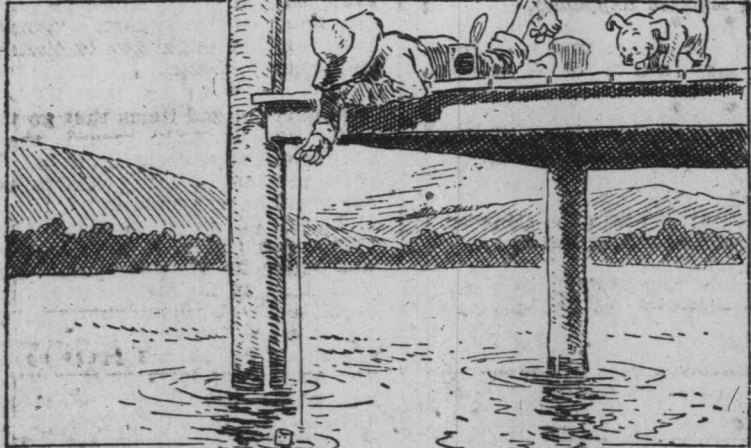

Dropped from an airplane at a height of between 4,000 and 5,000 feet at Aberdeen, this huge bomb tore a great hole in the ground, more than 60 feet in diameter and about 20 feet deep.

It was with a bomb half this size that Brigadier-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the air service, and his army fliers sunk the former German battleship Ostfriesland during the bombing tests with the ex-German warships off the Virginia capes a few months ago.

Mr. J. A. Daley, President,

Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Sir: We tried out the sample of Pancake Flour sent out and found it to have a very satisfactory flavor.

We gave half of it to a customer who buys Pancake Flour regularly. Today her husband told me they liked it very much but he was afraid they could not afford to buy it very often as the day after they used it his wife presented him with twins.

We should have the strength of it slightly weakened.

Yours truly,

Truths in Epigram

Revenge is a kind of wild justice, which the more man's nature runs to, the more ought law to weed out.—
Francis Bacon (1561-1626).
Hang sorrow! Care'll kill a cat.—Ben Jonson (1573-1637).
I say with Didacus Stella, a dwarf standing on the shoulders of a giant may see farther than a giant himself.—Robert Burton (1576-1640).

THEY NEED HARMONY

The chairman of the democratic national committee says that the party needs harmony. The firm grasp he holds upon this belief is shown by his expressed desire to resign if by such method harmony may be coaxed into the camp. He is not in a mood to be hasty about it. No harmony, no resignation. Such seems to be the gentleman's idea.

It must be confessed that the lack of harmony in the democratic party has been permitted mostly to pass without notice. Possibly this was due to the fact that the party itself wasn't being noticed much. Public activities have passed to other hands. The republican organization has had the spotlight. The democrats off in the wings, not having been visualized, have been forgotten. It may be the absence of harmony from their midst might not have been detected had the chairman not betrayed the melancholy secret.

But there is not the slightest doubt that the chairman is right in the estimate he places on harmony. No family can get along without it. No government functions at its best when harmony is away. Certainly a political party that bends its energies to scrapping, isn't making progress. And along with harmony, the democrats, if they are going to cut much figure, also will require a majority. Sometimes this is even harder to obtain than the harmony for which the chairman admits himself to be pining.

MORE PEOPLE COMING

For many reasons this part of California expects more visitors than it had last year. Business conditions are more nearly normal than then. There is less suspense in business circles. Last year there was a sort of fear that the bottom was going to drop out of everything. On the contrary improvement has been noted in every field of activity.

During the troubled period, southern California was outstanding as the white spot of the financial map. It declined to be discouraged or scared, but with full confidence continued about its business. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the effect of this was widespread. Easterners who ventured out here looked about apprehensively for something at which to be alarmed, taking for granted that the residents were alarmed. They saw nothing to scare them, and then discovered to their astonishment that the people here were not scared, but were wondering what the fuss was about. All this must have had a benign influence. Visitors took home with them a share of the native optimism, without in any manner reducing the supply.

Tourists of recent years have learned that climate and scenery, full as they are of charm, do not constitute the sole offering. There are wonderful opportunities for investment. There are many of the educational and social advantages that render southern California ideal as a place for homes. So it is that many tourists, coming as transients, elect to remain. And so it is that California in welcoming guests knows that in many instances it is welcoming future citizens of the state.

JUSTICE TO CHINA

Disturbing reports come from Washington that China fears the conference lacks intent to offer that country protection against Japan.

It is well to guard against acceptance of rumors touching the conference. Warning has been given many times of the poison gas that was to be loosed in the effort to discredit the gathering, and to misrepresent its purposes.

The particular reports under consideration come from sources that ordinarily would not be questioned. The hope arises that correspondents usually accurate have been misled. Definitely, their statement is, that of the two Chinese governments now functioning from different capitals, one is the creature of Japan, and the other is Chinese, holding to the right of the Chinese to govern themselves. This is not new information. When they add that it is the pro-Japan element that has been invited to the conference, the other being ignored, they reveal an apparent situation, which if confirmed, will be contemplated by Americans with a feeling far from pleasurable.

To accentuate the unfortunate effect of such an arrangement, it is stated that the favor shown to Japan is due to the suggestion and influence of Great Britain.

If all this proves to be true, the conference cannot carry out the high ideals that have been proclaimed the basis of it. It is defeated in advance by the lack of good faith.

The United States always has treated the Chinese with fairness and liberality. The Chinese know and proclaim this. They have looked upon this country as their friend. Sentimentally such an opinion as they hold of Americans is worth retaining; is something of which to be proud. Americans could ill afford to sanction a course that would result in losing the respect of a great nation of Orientals. If it should be coerced or cajoled into serving the plans of the Japanese, it would lose at the conference more than could be regained in generations.

CONCERNING GRAMMAR

Every community might emulate with advantage the example of Pasadena in the matter of having a "better grammar week" in the schools.

People become so accustomed to unkept and indefensible expressions that their senses cease to be shocked. Then it is easy for them to fall into evil lingual habits themselves.

Pupils of the public schools should be expected to speak as though they had some real knowledge of the medium employed in speaking. Daily they study textbooks, which, however dry, are as a rule phrased correctly. They are brought into contact with literature of real beauty and what is known as "style." They hear teachers who certainly have no difficulty in recognizing tenses, and who habitually refrain from use of the double negative.

Yet the part of instruction that has to do with the proper use of English slides off the juvenile mentality at a rate that makes water in its descent from a duck's back appear slow.

While newspaper language is far from perfect, it is the best that comes regularly within reach of thousands of persons unless they are readers of the noble sentences in the Bible. Purists have great joy in picking flaws in "Newspaperese." True, much that is printed has been compiled in haste, and perhaps subjected to mechanical mishap. Nevertheless if the degree of correctness achieved were even faintly approximated in the language of the street and of the marts of trade, it would be the assurance that a vast educational problem had been solved, or a miracle had happened.

The only fault to be found with a "better grammar week" is the indication that for some reason unknown, fifty-one very worthy and deserving weeks have been slighted.

It is singular to read that travelers in Coblenz are not permitted to purchase anything not demanded by necessity. This almost sets the limit at the buying of food. Germany is understood to be seeking the world's markets, but the policy of rejecting the opportunity for barter when it is available at home is novel.

If congress is serious in the effort to oust Blanton of Texas, the gentleman might as well begin packing his grip. Such matters are decided by the majority rather than by merit.

Los Angeles dope addicts are said to be paying as high as $300 an ounce for the poisons they particularly favor. This explains in part the activity of criminals, $300 for dope being more than a wage-earner could afford. The price the peddlers pay for the stuff is stated as $80 an ounce. Big dealers, who supply the peddlers buy at $15 to $18 an ounce. Taken altogether, a profit-crazy, degenerate brood.

ITS PERFECT WORK

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Perhaps partisanship, before it shall become discredited by the American people, must have its perfect work.

Mr. Lloyd George said in one of his speeches that one effect of war which might be considered advantageous is that it compels nations to recognize facts.

There is some truth in this. Perhaps the only way a gigantic delusion can get itself exploded is to go on swelling and swelling until it bursts.

The American people have fully accepted the appalling theory that political parties are necessary to democratic government.

At the close of the war the United States undoubtedly had the moral leadership of the world, and if it could have mustered up any sort of action it might have assisted the shattered nations of the earth toward that co-operation which is the genius of the American spirit.

Unfortunately, Mr. Wilson, the elected head of the republic, instead of being considered the leader of the American people, was considered the leader of the democratic faction, which swung into power on the moral reaction after the war.

Mr. Harding and his advisers, finding themselves in control of the situation, necessarily see the world problem essentially as Mr. Wilson did. That is to say, that it is necessary for the United States to get into some kind of co-operative harmony with other nations.

For this purpose Mr. Harding has called the disarmament conference, and that vast mass of intelligent citizens who supported Mr. Wilson's effort toward world unity are giving equal support to Mr. Harding's effort.

But partisanship looms up again. According to the report of the Washington correspondent, Frank H. Simonds, the probability is that the Washington conference, instead of being an affair in which all Americans will drop their differences and participate for the good of humanity, is to be made a matter of party politics.

"It is evident," says Mr. Simonds, "that the minority means to make the Washington conference an issue in democratic politics and that it is prepared to find fault at every stage of the game. The republicans frankly did all they could to weaken Mr. Wilson's hands while he was in Paris. The democrats are now getting ready to return the compliment."

"It is needless to say that President Harding has now to face a disagreeable situation. If his policy seems or can be made to seem too conciliatory, either to the British or the Japanese, then he will have to expect that the democratic party will seize upon these facts and seek to gain political support both from the anti-Japanese states on the Pacific coast and in the eastern states where the Irish have very important voting strength."

The republicans of the senate and of the party organization who opposed America's first adventure into the sea of internationalism now find themselves on the defensive. Of course, some internationalism is absolutely imperative, but just how a nation that can never rise above party issues and must always subordinate the interests of humanity to the interests of job holders can ever take its place in the councils of the world it is difficult to see.

The great mass of the people of the United States are unquestionably in favor of some form of an international association to prevent war. They do not care a tinker's dam whether it is engineered by republicans or democrats, and can only feel humiliation that they are unable to secure leaders who will put the interests of humanity and of their country above the interests they have in the next election.

THE LISTENING POST

The meeting of the American Legion at Kansas City inevitably recalls the world struggle of over four years.

When the nations of the earth were contending against each other with blood and fire.

Before the war it was said that no modern war could last more than six months.

The finances of the world would not stand the strain.

The bankers of the world would not permit it.

As is often the case, the prophecies of the sure were not realized.

For the war lasted more than four years, longer than the American civil war.

A nightmarish period of blood and gas and fire and maiming and death.

And the world was left bleeding, broken, exhausted, spent.

With a frightful destruction of life and property.

Millions of the young men of the world gone down to death too soon.

The loss in life cannot be made good.

The loss in property may be made good.

With work.

By the earnest and self-denying effort of the people of the world.

For the world was for four years engaged with destruction.

Billions of the accumulated reserves of property laid waste and destroyed.

And needing to be replaced.

Work is the one solution for the problems of the world today.

Not work by the other fellow.

But work by me and you.

For you and I and the other fellow make up the population of the world.

And if you and I do not work, then two-thirds of the population will be idle.

Two great things came out of the war.

Not material things.

But things of spirit that will fruit in material progress if we live them.

Two great spiritual things compassed in only four words.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Bugle Song.—By Alfred Tennyson (1809-1892)

The splendor falls on castle walls

And snowy summits old in story:

The long light shakes cross the lakes,

And the wild cataract leaps in glory.

Blow, bugle blow, set the wild echoes flying,

Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark, O hear! how thin and clear,

And thinner, clearer, farther going!

O sweet and far from cliff and scar

The horns of Elfland faintly blowing!

Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying:

Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O love they die in yon rich sky,

They faint on hill or field or river:

Our echoes roll from soul to soul,

And grow forever and forever.

Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,

And answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

STAND BY HARDING

[New York Evening Post]

The election of a republican congressman from Senator Lodge's home district by the usual wide margin confirms the verdict registered by the senatorial election in New Mexico. There is no sign yet of a reaction against the administration.

The republican candidate in Massachusetts polled less than half as many votes as the republican candidate in the same district polled last November, but the vote for his democratic opponent fell off even more, although Senator Walsh, Senator Lodge's democratic colleague, appealed to the voters to rebuke the Harding administration by returning a democratic congressman. Evidently they did not feel that the administration deserved to be rebuked.

ORATORY-LOSING GRIP

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

Oratory as such is losing its old grip in America. The oratorical tradition is dying. When we think of congressional orators it is the names of yesterday, Webster, Hayne, Clay and Conkling, or of Conkling, Voorhees and Ingalls, that comes to mind. In comparison most of the crop of the present day is poor, futile and ineffective.

Closure may rob us of a few great speeches, but they will not be many. It may deprive us of certain enlightenment, but not much. A reasonable closure ought to help vastly more than it will hurt.

An hour's speech by any senator on any subject ought to be enough. This will save time, patience and much white paper, reduce the size of the Congressional Record, speed up business and may even result in better senatorial speeches.

AN EDUCATIONAL NEED

[Washington Post]

The recent educational survey on everyday topics clearly showed the need of current events courses in the schools and colleges of the country. When a big percentage of students displays ignorance of the men and affairs of the day, it is high time to do something to correct the condition. Boys and girls should be kept abreast of the times. In order to round out their education they need to know things other than those contained in textbooks.

Current event courses will fill the need. More stress laid on the affairs of the day will make interesting the hours that are so bothersome to all healthy

Los Angeles is to have a "safety week" during which period to permit oneself to be bumped by an automobile will be regarded as impolite.

A Chicago professor says there are no handsome girls in the United States. This is an unusually foolish allegation even for a professor.

Oklahoma owes the whole country an explanation as to how Representative Herrick happened.

Whenever delegates to the disarmament conference get puzzled, they may turn to H. G. Wells. He'll tell 'em.

Ellnor Glyn thinks something is wrong with the American girl. There is. She has read some of Glyn's books.

The first man to try to put pep into the Congressional Record almost got kicked out of the house.

Many prospective invalids are anxious to know just what symptoms are essential for one desiring the beer treatment.

Germans engaged in delivering bees to France, as provided by the terms of reparation, feel the sting of the situation.

Children. An added zest can be given to study. That will help the youngsters and the teachers, too. The practical can well be combined with the theoretical, to the end that the young men and women of the country will have a broader education than the survey indicates to be the vogue at present.

Parents and teachers would do well to demand that children keep in touch with the news of the day. History is made every twenty-four hours. Not all of it is lasting, but the lessons and impressions of the fleeting day should be read by all. The newspapers furnish the medium of instruction that is needed by grownups as well as children. Through their columns one can gain a liberal education. No one ignorant of the affairs of the day is well educated. Hence a knowledge of current events is an obligation that rests upon every good citizen. It is one of the greatest of our educational needs.

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

Preceded by a tangle of contradictions, lies, innumerable, absurd theories, beyond number, inept and futile character, analyses, the trial of Burch for the murder of Kennedy has begun. That of the Obenchain woman is to follow.

Burch puts his cards on the table by proclaiming himself insane; not insane enough to bother him much in ordinary circumstances, but just sufficiently and comfortably crazy to serve as a protection.

The plea of insanity will be construed by the public as a confession of guilt, accompanied by the implied interrogatory, "And now what are you going to do about it?"

If he can make good by these tactics, it is idle to attempt the punishment, restriction, or even mild discouragement of murder.

Amidst all the mess of hysterical slush the words of District Attorney Woolwine seem to radiate normally sense. He said, "These are ordinary murder cases, and they will take the ordinary course."

Happily for esteemed readers, no part of the trial as it proceeds is to take place in this column.

Efforts are in progress to blacken the character of Virginia Rappe, the unfortunate young woman supposed to have died as the result of a social gathering in the suite of Roscoe Arbuckle.

Perhaps the persons yielding to an impulse to supply affidavits purporting to expose the life of the girl up to the time when she became Arbuckle's guest, deem themselves engaged in a seemly task. The public is likely not to accept such view. The idea of the public is that for whatever error she may have committed, the girl paid the utmost penalty, and that the survivor of the episode is the individual to be tried.

Washington dispatches say that the Anglo-Jap alliance will be dissolved. It is probable that this is true. When a group of nations act in concert, and for purposes and by methods openly declared, there could not be secret understandings between any two of them. At least such an understanding would be the evidence of bad faith towards the others.

Moving picture people are not collecting funds with which to fight blue law legislation. They desire the public to understand this for two reasons at least. One is that funds are being solicited by persons wholly unauthorized to represent the moving picture folk. The other is that the opposition of the picture producers to "blue laws" is based on logic and does not need to fortify itself by purchase of anybody's influence.

It seems just at present that the county has won a victory over the Rindge clan of the Malibu hills. The Rindges for more than a decade have been fighting the building of a shore road. The road could not harm them, and in many respects it must enhance their interests. It will give the public access to a beautiful drive along the Pacific, and open the topographical bottle in which ranches back of the Malibu had been corked. The latest appeal of the Rindges was to the federal courts, the jurisdiction of which has been denied by Judge Trippett.

The courts at Long Beach fined a sailor $25 for an exhibition of his method of dancing. Life on the ocean wave is far less expensive.

Swabbing decks isn't the jazz brand of fun, but it is respectable.

Now they have a "Miracle Child." She lays infant fingers on the sick and lame, and a word, and the afflicted know away their crutches and gallop home to peel the potatoes for supper. "Some kid!" as they might say in circles that tolerate slang.

Among the sad items that go to make up the daily record, that telling of the tragic death of a child touches as many hearts as are capable of sympathy.

A lad of seven received the Halloween gift of a bicycle. He was killed as he was taking his first ride. In the fashion of many boys, some of whom survive, he had grasped the rear of a truck. His wheel struck a slippery spot, and an instant later he was lifeless under the heavy machine ahead.

Poor, foolish youngster! He could not have been expected to understand the risk. Yet men understand the risks of the highway, and habitually incur them with a recklessness as complete as that of the boy who happy and laughing, rode to his death.

In The Social Realm

THURSDAY WAS FULL DAY AT M. E.

Thursday was a full day for members of the women's societies of the First Methodist church. At 10:30 there was a business session of the Ladies' Aid, at noon a luncheon and social hour, and in the afternoon a missionary program, and as a side issue a party for the "Mothers' Jewels," the infant department of the missionary society. This party was given in the social hall from 3:30 to 5 o'clock and was in charge of Mrs. G. Edwin Murphy. The little folk were entertained with games and ice cream cones were served by way of refreshment, about 25 children being guests.

The study book on foreign missions is entitled "The Kingdom of the Nations," and as an illustration of the first chapter one of the members and a child appeared in native costumes of Japan at the missionary program. Mrs. S. B. Warner reviewed the chapter and Miss Isabel Isgrig sang a missionary hymn, for which Mrs. H. W. Randall played the accompaniment.

LAVERA KITTERMAN ENTERTAINS AT BUNGO

Miss Lavera Kitterman entertained Thursday night at her home, 311 North Kenwood. The evening was devoted to bunks, and refreshments were served at the close.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. G. Edwin Murphy, Miss Dorothy Hamilton, Miss Mildred Johnson, Miss Helen Conway, Miss L. Perkins, Miss Mary Rich, Miss Lois Percy, Messrs. Cecil Percy, J. Maling, George Redinger, Elwood Inglede, Arthur Schoson and Verne Wilson. The first prize was won by Ellis Thomas, the consolation favor going to G. Edwin Murphy.

REHEARSALS FOR PLAYS GO FORWARD

While rehearsals have been going forward night and day for the three one-act plays which are to be given as a clubhouse fund benefit by the drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club on November 18, this extra activity is not interfering with the regular gatherings of the section. It will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Roger Bentley on North Central avenue. At that time members expect to finish the fourth act of "Quality Street," by Barrie, and the curator, Mrs. R. E. Chase, will give a brief history of the drama in the Orient.

Committees will be appointed to have charge of properties to be used in the plays to be given on the 18th, and to make the flowers to be used in the last act of the final play.

CERRITOS P. T. A. HELD SESSION

The Cerritos Parent-Teacher meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Roger Bentley on North Central avenue, and presented a diversified program of great interest. It opened with a playground exhibition of volleyball, directed by Mrs. McReynolds, and while this was in progress refreshments were served. At 3 o'clock the ladies were called to order for a business session, at which the project of providing a municipal Christmas tree for that part of the city on the Magnolia campus, was discussed.

The program which followed included "A Review of Ben Hur," by Geo. Karcher, seventh grade pupil; a paper entitled "An Exciting Experience," by Preston Blair, another pupil, who told of a fishing adventure; recitation, "The Way to Heaven," by Marjorie Praelix, and a saxophone solo by Wayne Gulick, accompanied on the piano by his sister, Olive Gulick.

Mrs. John Robert White, president of the Parent-Teacher federation, made a short address on school matters of general interest, which was followed by an open forum to which there were four contributions by teachers. Miss Ella Gray read a fine paper on "The Value and Uses of Play," Miss Hutchinson took as her theme "Compiling With the Law," and referred to a number of state laws, having to do with attendance and with the handling of contagious diseases which teachers are obliged to enforce regardless of their own opinions on the matter. Mrs. Hartzell spoke on chaperonage and Mrs. Annie Curtis, principal, spoke of the school basement and yard and set forth how carefully they are supervised at all hours of the school day. The banner for the largest attendance of mothers went to Mrs. Gray's room, and the picture awarded to the eighth grade for securing the largest number of P. T. A. members, was shown. It is a beautiful copy of Whistler's portrait of his mother.

Quite a sensation was created by the report of the chairman of membership, who announced an enrollment of 267, all adults.

ST. MARK'S GUILD PLANS FOR BAZAAR

A large amount of work was accomplished at the all-day meeting of St. Mark's Guild Thursday. A picnic lunch was served at noon and at 3 o'clock the chairman appointed to head the various committees for the bazaar to be held by the guild November 19.

The committees will be Mrs. Campbell, cooked food; Mrs. F. England, fancy aprons and caps; Mrs. J. L. McOmber, large aprons; Mrs. Steck, country booth; Mrs. M. Baker, baby and miscellaneous; Mrs. Bassett, rugs and bags; Mrs. Farber, tea tables. Special quarters are to be constructed for the bazaar at the entrance to the Cox & Downey Nursery on South Brand. Another all-day meeting will be held next Thursday, beginning at 10 a. m., by the guild.

DOROTHY PEARSON HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Peart of 111 East Elk avenue entertained Friday evening at a birthday party in honor of their daughter, Dorothy. Relatives were the only guests.

The decorations were carried out in yellow and white with flowers, candles and tiny baskets filled with candies. Covers were laid for eight. P. O. CHAPTER ALL-DAY MEETING

Chapter C. J. of the P. E. O. held its regular all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. W. Kimball, 339 West Lexington drive, who was assisted by Mrs. R. J. Hinchcliff. The day was spent in sewing for the "True Love Home" in Los Angeles. A delicious luncheon was served at noon by the hostesses, and in the afternoon a short talk was made by Miss Margaret Cox on "Love."

Mrs. J. Herbert Smith and Mrs. W. H. Kimball were guests of the chapter, which registered an almost full attendance.

Disarmament Welcomed By Japan Says Statesman

Viscount Kano declares his nation is poor in natural resources, has inefficient transport and greatly modified imperialistic desires.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Disarmament is more urgently welcomed in Japan than in any other country, according to Viscount Kano, who represents that nation on the League of Nations Council.

In an interview granted International News Service, Viscount Kano tells of the feelings, hopes and apprehensions of his people as follows:

"Japan is often blamed as being a militaristic and Jingoist country. But everybody who is familiar with her history knows that she has been under the menace of foreign invasion for centuries. The invasion by the Mongols was the first. Then, in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Japan was obliged to close her country for fear of conquest by European maritime nations. The power of Britain extended through India and Singapore to Hong Kong. The French came as near as Cochin China. The Dutch and the Portuguese took the South Sea Islands. Russia was stretching her arms through Siberia to Manchuria. When Japan saw that neighboring countries were passing one by one to foreign domination it was inevitable that she should feel apprehensive, and the patriotic feelings of the people were thoroughly aroused.

"The realization of her peril profoundly stirred her imagination, and she resolved upon taking drastic steps for her self-preservation. Hence, her reconstruction from feudalism to nationalism. Such a step was deemed by all the far-seeing population in her midst to be her only salvation.

"The reconstruction of our army and navy inevitably followed. But it was only during the 15 years that followed the Russo-Japanese war that the militaristic party grasped political power and propagated among the people the necessity of territorial expansion in Manchuria and Siberia.

"Fortunately for Japan the failure of the Prussian militarism in the great war was a striking lesson, and at the same time my people found the burden of expense for the army and navy to be intolerable.

"Disarmament is more urgently welcomed in Japan than in any other country. She is poor in natural resources. Her transport is not yet efficient, and houses are scarce. These facts have had a great effect on her national feelings; her imperialistic aims have in consequence been greatly modified.

"Let me give you three pictures of Japan at the present time:

"First: Several months in advance of the proposal by the United States government to hold the conference in Washington Mr. Ozaki, ex-minister of justice, made a disarmament tour throughout Japan and took a postcard vote. Ninety per cent of the population declared itself in favor of disarmament.

"The second picture is one that will appeal to all American and British mothers:

"In Japan we have conscription, and at the age of twenty every boy must present himself for medical inspection, with a view to undergoing military or naval training. Every one of their mothers worships at the shrine, praying that her son may be chanced to be the natal day of Mrs. Baxter and Mrs. Williams, who were the recipients of handsome bouquets from Mr. Webb. Another surprise of the evening was the announcement made by Mrs. McGhee that Mrs. Rasmussen had stolen a march on her fellow clerks and become the bride of Arthur Williams of Los Angeles.

It proved a very jolly affair and refreshments were served after an evening of games.

HOUSTONS HAVE DINNER GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Houston were host and hostess Thursday night at a dinner given at their home, 440 West Myrtle street, for Mrs. Maria L. Patterson, mother of the hostess, and June M. Selleck, her brother-in-law, who has been residing at 450 Myrtle, but is leaving for Capetown, South Africa, on Friday.

He goes as engineer for the A. W. Mepkes Co. of New York, a large engineering corporation which has secured a contract to build 366 grain elevators for the South African government. He will be one of a party of engineers who will sail from New York on the Aquitania, and who will be followed by their wives and families a month later.

It was a family dinner at which covers were laid for 12, at a beautifully appointed table.

D. A. R. PROGRAM MOST INTERESTING

A rather wonderful program was provided at the meeting of the General Richard Gridley Chapter of the D. A. R. at the home of the regent, Mrs. John Hyde Braly, Thursday afternoon.

Speakers who have been heard by the Men's City Club of Los Angeles in connection with the nationwide move for international peace, addressed the chapter, Prof. Hadley and Prof. Arthur Cotter, who is at the head of the research department of California banks, and who resides in this city.

Prof. Cotter was for ten years a representative of Reuters News Agency, a European news gathering association similar to the Associated Press in this country. Much of the time he spent in Russia, where he had opportunity to study the country under the rule of the Czar, and later under Soviet rule. He contends that the common people of Russia are better off under their present government than under imperialism, and that a vital experiment in government is being carried on there. He and Prof. Hadley are spokesmen for a large group of people who are promoting the peace movement and insisting that Russia should be represented at disarmament conference, that she is essentially for peace and has not engaged in war except when driven to do so by circumstances.

After these speeches, which were of intense interest, a very fine address on "Disarmament" was made by Mr. Braly.

passed medically unfit to join the army.

"Third picture: When the anti-American feeling was very strong the students of all the universities and colleges in Tokio decided at a conference that they would not fight against America or any nation, because war helped the capitalist and the manufacturer alone, and all the rest of the community suffered.

"It might well be asked why Japan is spending 50 per cent of her revenue on the army and navy. It is because Japan is not as yet thoroughly democratic and never will be until the political franchise is extended to women.

"Economic needs caused America to call a disarmament conference at Washington to solve the Pacific problem, one which should be discussed by the nations of the whole world with the working classes represented."

GUILTY VERDICT IN SOUTHDARD CASE

Second Degree Murder Verdict Returned This Afternoon by Jury

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Lydia Southard, alleged poisoner of her husband, today was found guilty of second degree murder. Specifically she was accused of having poisoned Edward F. Meyer, her fourth husband. The verdict was returned shortly before 3 p. m. after approximately 24 hours deliberation.

Mrs. Southard was charged with having poisoned Meyer in order to obtain his property and insurance and was also accused by the state of having poisoned her three previous husbands, Robert C. Dooley, William C. McHaffie and Harlan C. Lewis and her brother-in-law, Edward Dooley. The motive, the state alleged, was the same in each case—the desire to obtain insurance.

Paul Vincent Southard, fifth and surviving husband of the accused woman, continuously paced the corridor of the courtroom today. He was not allowed to visit his wife after the court recess Thursday. Southard's belief in his wife's innocence and in her ultimate acquittal are expressed in no uncertain terms by him on slightest provocation. Rumors of every nature regarding the return of a verdict are at large in Twin Falls today. Betting on the street runs as odds on that the jury would disagree.

MANY DIAMONDS IN TEST PROVE FAKES

Drop of Water is Said to be One of Surest Tests on Stones

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Is your diamond genuine? If there is any doubt in your mind the best thing is to take it to a reliable jeweler. You can, however, test the stone yourself if you know how. And here's how:

A small drop of water on the face of a clean diamond may be rolled about with the point of a pin without losing its globular shape. On an imitation diamond the water will spread. A genuine diamond immersed in a glass of water will flash and sparkle as brightly as in the air. A counterfeit gem will be almost invisible.

An imitation squeezed between two silver dollars may be crushed by the pressure of the fingers. This test, when performed by the strongest man, will not injure a diamond. A steel file applied to a diamond will not scratch it. It will chip a counterfeit. When heated by a Bunsen burner, a genuine stone may be easily cleaned of the mark. The imitation holds the mark stubbornly.

The best test of all is that of specific gravity. All diamonds have a specific gravity of 3.52. If you don't know how to take specific gravity any chemist can take it for you.

The latest word from the syndicate which controls the diamond market is that the price of diamonds will not come down. The directors of the company say, on the contrary, that conditions in the South African mines make it probable there will be a slow but steady advance in price for several years.

RICKARD IN HANDS OF RECEIVER SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Tex Rickard, who staged the Johnson-Jeffries, the Willard-Dempsey and the Dempsey-Carpentier battles, and who is now promoting events in Madison Square Garden here, has been ordered to court in the supreme court here Monday to show cause why his affairs should not be placed in the hands of a receiver. With George L. Rickard, as "Tex" is known to the court, are summoned the Madison Square Garden Corporation and the Madison Square Sporting Club, Inc.

Frank C. Armstrong, a director of Blair & Co., Broadway brokers, brought the motion for the order, which was granted by Judge Hotchkiss today. William W. Armstrong, president of the National Copper Bank of Salt Lake City, is named as one of those to whom Rickard owes money, and who seek a receiver.

International Metal Workers' Federation has branches in 18 countries with an aggregate membership of more than 4,000,000.

MRS. OBENCHAIN IS TOO ILL FOR COURT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—"Madam Obenchain is too ill to appear at this hearing, your honor," Charles Erbstein, the "fightin' Chicagoan," asserted when court convened this afternoon to hear his motion for dismissal of the murder charges against his client.

"I will not render a decision on the motion unless the defendant is in court," Judge Reeve said. Erbstein was forced to introduce witnesses to prove that Mrs. Obenchain was dangerously ill.

RELEASE ALBA

ROME, Nov. 4.—Antonio Alba, who attempted to assassinate King Victor Emanuel in 1912, was liberated from prison under the amnesty decree of the king. Answers of Alba to questions put to him indicated his mind had been affected by his imprisonment. He did not recognize his father.

FRANK MCGILLIS HURT IN COLLISION

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 4.—Seven students of the Southern branch of the University of California were injured here today in a head-on automobile crash. They were bound for Berkeley to attend tomorrow's football game. The students were seriously hurt. They will probably recover.

They are Warren King, Los Angeles and Frank McGillis, Glendale. An assistant director in physics was reported to be among those hurt. Three of the injured are en route to Los Angeles.

By July 1, 1922, it is calculated that the saving of coal due to the electrification of railroads in Italy will amount to 1000 tons a day.

WEARING OF GREEN WAS EASILY PROVED

BROWNSVILLE, Ore., Nov. 4.—In existence of sophomores of the local high school in compelling members of the freshman class to wear green brought about a near riot. The vigilance committee seized a girl of the "rook" class and insisted that she show that she was complying with the rules. The girl emphatically insisted that she was. Brought before the student body, she raised her skirt enough to show that she was wearing an emerald-colored garter.

CORNSTALK DISEASE

OMAHA, Nov. 4.—Delbert Brasham, a farmer near Callway, reports two steers dead from cornstalk disease, which has made its appearance. Another farmer living near Friend reports six head of cattle dead from the same disease.

Glendale's Shopping Guide Brings The Usual and Unusual To You

In her journeys from place to place, Martha Alicia finds many things of interest Mr. Glendale. Mrs. Glendale and all the Glendale youngsters. As a "shopping scout" for Glendale Daily Press readers, Martha Alicia covers many steps for buyers.

DO YOU KNOW THAT IT IS really an art to correctly hang the paper on the walls, or to paint a house attractively? Well, it is every bit as much an art as the work of an artist who paints a wonderful landscape or a portrait! You should engage one who has mastered this art in all its details to do your papering. It is regrettable that so many people have the impression that paper-hanging and house-painting are tasks that anyone can do. This is not true, for even here in beautiful Glendale there are a number of otherwise attractive homes, standing in mute evidence that someone was mistaken. That is why I warn you that when your house needs a fresh coat of paint or an attractive new paper, get HARRY R. MOORE, 304 East Broadway. Mr. Moore knows his business and you may be assured that if he does the work, it will be done right—and reasonably, for he will make you the best price on paint and paper, and keep the cost of labor remarkably low. Mr. Moore is an interior decorator of proven ability and the instant success of your home-furnishing is assured if he is planning the decoration!

Chain straw hats are garlanded with flowers.

AT NEALE & GREGG'S HARDWARE STORE, 107 North Brand boulevard, yesterday, I heard news of a full new shipment of plumbing fixtures. The prices, of course, are extremely low—this is the case always at Neale & Gregg's. For the bath you'll find most sanitary and convenient soap dishes, snowy white of fine porcelain, or, if you prefer them, nickel-plated fixtures. Then of glass you'll find dandy towel racks—and they too come in the porcelain and nickel-plated design. But don't take my word for it—go down to their store and you'll be able to see them all attractively displayed in the window.

Neale & Gregg Hardware Store is well known to every housewife in Glendale by their unusually complete stock in all lines—as well as for their extremely low prices; and, I believe I've told you, that you are absolutely protected when you do your shopping at Neale & Gregg's for they are a good Housekeeping Store—carrying nationally advertised and fully guaranteed products.

Straight silhouette continues to hold the center of the stage.

NUSSBAUM'S GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET, at 244 North Brand boulevard, is a constant source of joy to the housewife, who carefully plans her budget of monthly expenditures. For tomorrow, for instance, Mr. Nussbaum is offering a special 8-ounce bottle of Sunbeam mayonnaise, together with another smaller bottle—all for only 26¢. Then, too, they have the delectable of Snowflake Crackers or Petite Wafers, in bulk as low as 16¢ per pound.

Nussbaum's Meat Department, too, have some interesting items for the Saturday shopper—Pure pork sausage at 25¢ per pound and the most delicious, fancy Eastern Bacon for 32¢ the pound. Their meats are always pure and fresh.

Butter is not needed when mayonnaise is used in a sandwich.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER AT 107 East Broadway I discovered the MISSION STORE, a shop with the most complete line of stationery and writing materials ever carried here. Dainty greeting and congratulatory cards for all occasions, and a sundry line of every description, on display at city prices, and often much lower! A few advance samples of Christmas presents are also being shown, and judging from the prices, it will not be necessary to go into the city for bargains.

Market baskets will not chip if put into hot stews now and then and scrubbed with a brush.

ITS VERY FRESHNESS AND PURITY make White Rose Spring Water not only a most healthful but a pleasant drink! Call the INDEPENDENT ICE CO., 106 East California Ave., Glendale 217. They deliver!

YOU HAVE, NO DOUBT, OFTEN wished you might have one of your out-of-town friends spend a few days with you. Perhaps it was due to lack of room that you couldn't arrange it. Then you will be interested in the Nufold bed, or rather, Davenport, that I saw at the GLENDALE FURNITURE STORE, 606-608 East Broadway, today. The Nufold looks like a handsome leather davenport and is, during the day—but at night it is quite the most comfortable bed imaginable. You may see the real and imitation leather models at the Glendale Furniture Store, and at remarkably low prices!

A PERSON IS BOUND TO FORGET

for the moment the frills and frocks and things to eat when shopping around Glendale. The one thing that impressed me today while touring the stores is the many household conveniences being presented to the housewife today. "Killing Wives," I saw those two words quoted somewhere in the Press this week—I think it was in an advertisement—and being interested in anything that sounds "thrilling," I read what followed in the head line. Washing and ironing has killed wives—the old-fashioned way of washing and ironing. Today, wives, and single women, for that matter, make electrically equipped machinery do their washing and ironing, so that very largely, all the women of today have to do is press a button and go on reading the paper.

It is a good plan when making a steamed or boiled pudding to put a pleat in the cloth at the top to allow the pudding to swell.

WHEN ONE IS CONTINUALLY trying to catch up with a "run" in her stocking, life is hardly worth living. That is why I recommend SHERROD'S SPECIALTY SHOP, 207 East Broadway, for hose that will really wear. Mrs. Quackenbush has an excellent stock of fine hosiery—some of wool, lisle, silk, and some trimmed with lace clocks and others with lace stripes. There is a wonderful line of heavy all-silk plain stockings, much to be desired because of their unusual wearing qualities!

COMBINING THE DESIRABLE ATTRIBUTES, medium and interpreter, the Knabe with the Ampico Reproducing Piano exactly reproduces the playing of great pianists, without visible aid, and without effort on the part of the listener.

It brings to those far distant the joy of hearing the master pianists' interpretations of pianoforte classics and brings into the home ideal playing of music of every kind.

The reproduction of an artist's playing on the Ampico differs from that of the living pianist only in that in one case the artist is actually present, and in the other he is not at the keyboard; the performances, however, are identical.

The reproduction of the playing of the great pianists, expressed through the Ampico with the exquisite tonal beauty of the Knabe Piano, attains a perfection that is unapproachable.

Stop in at the BARNES-SHUCK Music Co., 211 North Brand Boulevard, and ask to hear the Ampico.

Tomato juice will remove ink stains from fingers.

FURS THAT ENHANCE A WOMAN'S charm need not be the most expensive, but they must be well designed and of becoming lines. There are many women who will be overjoyed to know of the opening here, Glendale, of the BEDDLE FUR SHOP, at 1125 North Louise street.

Miss Beddle has been a designer of furs of some renown in New York, where she has been engaged in business until recently. It is her particular joy to "express one's own personality in the furs she makes, and when you have talked with her a few minutes you will know she has confidence in her ability. I suggest that you visit her shop and see what she has done.

Black and white effects predominate in jewelry.

A BARGAIN FOR THE HOME-SEEKER is what VANDENHOFF, 205 North Brand Blvd., is offering this week. In an attractive five-room modern bungalow, on a large lot 53 1/2 by 166 feet, he has a real buy. It is quite near the car line, and has many fruit trees, with all kinds of fruit. And he is asking only $4500 for it, and on terms, too. Go in and see Mr. Vandenhoff about it immediately!

Nine inches from the ground is a smart length for skirts.

WHEN YOU ARE AT A LOSS TO know what refreshments to offer your guests, phone Glendale 220-J and order some Quality Doughnuts. Fresh, sugared, home-made doughnuts, such as these, served with hot coffee, is a most tempting delicacy for mid-afternoon! And these doughnuts are baked fresh every day at the QUALITY DOUGHNUT SHOPPE, 104 West California Ave.

FOR CLEANING AND PRESSING—work of the highest quality—call the BRAND CLEANERS, 217 South Brand Blvd. Their prices are really very low!

Do not keep artificially soiled garments in an unaired place. They are likely to become discolored.

THE END OF A PERFECT MONDAY! For the woman who has been doing her washing with a Climax Electric Washer, the dawn of Monday morning holds no terrors! And so, Monday night comes, not to find her tired out after a strenuous day over the wash-tubs, but her usual sunny self—happy, well and carefree! She knows that her Climax Washer will wash the clothes thoroughly and correctly—without wear or tear, and in but a few hours.

WASHER WILSON, 140 South Brand Blvd., sells the Climax Washer—a dolly type machine of excellent reputation. It has the wooden tub, and a wonderful, reversible, swinging wringer and extension bench. The beauty of the Climax is that there is no water to be lifted in or out, as is so often the case. There is a hose connected, which may be attached to a faucet, while the hot water runs in, and in the same manner it can be drained. Mr. Wilson will arrange convenient terms for you—the price is only $75.00—and you can pay $5.00 down and $5.00 a month—less than the average family's weekly laundry bill. Of course, if you can arrange to pay the cash, it will mean quite a saving, for then Mr. Wilson will make you a price of $68.00. Step in and see him the next time you are down that way!

Little onion juice is a good remedy to use if stung by a bee. The juice on the inflamed spot soon allays the pain.

SOMETIMES I THINK LIFE would hardly be worth living without a daily cup or two of Booth's Coffee! It is so pure and fresh, and always invigorating and tempting. I never pass 318 East Broadway until I buy a pound on general principles. And I find it really an excellent habit, for when guests drop in in the evening I can always have a most delicious drink in "just a jiffy."

Booth understands the coffee and tea business, as he was for many years a coffee and tea taster in England, and, as you probably know, he is one of our "pioneer" business men. BOOTH'S COFFEES AND TEAS are reasonable in price and rank among the best in quality!

There should be windows on at least two sides of the kitchen for light and for air circulation.

FOR THE LITTLE NEW ARRIVAL you'll find the loveliest and daintiest garments at the KENDRA DRY GOODS STORE, 115 East Broadway! They are making a specialty of little silk robes, fine bonnets, and soft silk and wool sweaters. Of course, there is a nice line of ivories, embracing rattles, and everything a baby will need. For the little tots, too, the Glendale Dry Goods Store has a clever line of frocks in most attractive colors, rompers for "just everyday," and, as you probably know, he is one of our "pioneer" business men. And the little man hasn't been slighted, either, for you will find some dandy beavers and "really truly" sailors. Everything from hosiery and underwear to new hats, you will find for children of all ages in their lovely new store. Don't forget—now is the time to commence your Christmas shopping!

Good punch is made with lemon and orange juice, grape juice and shredded fresh pineapple.

I LIKE TO THINK OF THE GLENDALE PHARMACY, 638 East Broadway, as the home of unusual bargains. It was only yesterday that Mr. Stuart showed me the loveliest pearl manicure set in a good-looking dark green leather case, lined with velvet—for only $10.00! Another, of ivory, in a black case, and rose-velvet lined, was $15.00. Just the thing for Sister's Christmas present, isn't it? Mr. Stuart is giving a fine lather brush with each 25-cent tube of Stuart's Shaving Cream, if purchased next week!

FIBRE should be measured after a single sitting.

DO YOU KNOW THAT YOU CAN now have BRAIDING done right here in Glendale? The BROOKS SHOPPE at 123 North Brand boulevard is now prepared to do fancy BRAIDING and worsted EMBROIDERY in many attractive designs. They also cover FANCY BUTTONS with your own materials. HEMSTITCHING and PICKETING can also be done in any style you wish.

FOR CLEANING AND PRESSING—work of the highest quality—call the BRAND CLEANERS, 217 South Brand Blvd. Their prices are really very low!

JACKSON PLANNING FOR TRANSFER OF CITY POSTOFFICE

Spends Time With Department Man in Arranging for Transfer

While official orders announce that D. Ripley Jackson does not take office as postmaster of Glendale until December 31, he has been busy every day since his appointment, making arrangements for the transfer from a branch of the Los Angeles office to an independent postoffice. Mr. Jackson says that he realizes there will be considerable confusion the first few days but assures the citizens that he will do all in his power to facilitate reorganization.

For the past two days Mr. Jackson has been conferring with Inspector Hare of the postoffice department and J. R. Grey, owner of the building housing the postoffice, making plans for locating the office after the change is made. It is possible that the Glendale postoffice will remain in the same building with the addition of an extra room and completely remodeling the building.

Mr. Jackson has established a temporary office with Mr. Grey at 182 North Brand boulevard and is spending the greater portion of each day there. He can be seen at this office or at his home and announces that he is willing to listen to suggestions as to the betterment of the service.

REALTY BOARD WILL HAVE BIG DRIVE

At the annual meeting of the realty board Thursday night at the intermediate school plans were made for a membership campaign. Several non-members were present and expressed their willingness to join. In planning for the campaign, Charles Guthrie, president, gave a talk in which he explained the object of the board and its efforts to help the real estate agent and build up the real estate. He stated that the real estate man did not enter the business in a haphazard manner but is a trained man, experienced in all phases of the business.

"The real estate man," said Mr. Guthrie, "has made a study of selling property, steps to secure a deed, putting papers through escrow and all of the legal sides of a deal. He must be versed in the care of property for owners who are non-residents."

The future of the organization was discussed as well as the aims and objects of the State Federation. J. J. A. Parker communicated with the board and asked for information regarding the operation of such a board in an eastern city. The meeting adjourned to meet next Thursday night at the intermediate school.

NATIONAL GUARD DRILL ON THURSDAY

Glendale units of the national guard had an excellent drill Thursday night with a crowd of spectators to encourage them. The equipment for the machine gun company is now arriving, consisting of harnesses, wagons, machine guns, etc., and officers are looking for a place in which to store it. It will include when completed about sixteen horses and mules for which quarters will also have to be found.

The company will drill with its equipment once a week and its first appearance on the thoroughfares of Glendale will create a sensation. It may do part of its drilling on the armory field at Exposition park.

REPORT DUDLEY'S RESIDENCE SOLD

Reports are current among real estate operators that C. W. Dudley, connected with the Glendale office of the telephone company, has sold his residence property at 102 North Central on the southeast corner of Broadway for $21,000 to D. J. Hanna, who purchased the Jesse Joseph property at the corner of Lexington and Orange. The Central avenue property was on the market about two years ago for $77500. It is improved with a two-story house on a lot 50x125 feet.

BOYD IS MANAGER LUMBER COMPANY

R. E. Boyd, a lumberman of 30 years' experience, is the general manager and president of the Glendale Lumber Co., that is starting in business on South San Fernando road. Mr. Boyd has spent his life in the lumber business and knows every phase of the game. He announces that he will conduct a first-class yard, handling only quality lumber. The public is invited to visit the yard and inspect it. Mr. Sawyer, who is an experienced lumberman and a member of the Elk and Masonic lodges of this city, is salesmanager for the new company.

COUNTRY STORE TO BE AT LEGION PARK

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Glendale Post American Legion, will conduct a Country Store on the grounds of the Sheesley Shows during the Armistice week celebration to be given by the local post. The thrifty housewife will be delighted with the baskets filled with a large variety of groceries that will be offered over the counters of the store. The funds raised by the operation of the store will be turned over to the Glendale Post, No. 127 of the American Legion to be used in the building fund.

Artist Bride Tells Why She Lives Next Door To Husband

Miss Ethel Traphagen

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—In the popular street studios, a bit of Parnassus, bound to earth in Brooklyn, are two who dwell in that state of matrimony made famous by Fannie Hurst.

And yet there is a difference, too. While Miss Ethel Traphagen—she still uses her maiden name—and her husband, William R. Leigh, have separate homes, they live right next door to each other. They eat three meals a day together and visit back and forth. Yet both are free to pursue their careers in their own way.

Where have you heard those names before? Well, Ethel Traphagen is an artist and designer of note, as well as an author of books on costume design, while her distinguished husband paints vivid pictures of our great Southwest, which have brought sunlight and a breath of clean air from the desert into many a home and art gallery.

In June the marriage took place, and until recently these two artists have been roughing it in canyons and plains of the wildest parts of Arizona. Having lived happily in the primitive style, Miss Traphagen and Mr. Leigh now return to the most modern married state, the separate household.

Bride Tells of Agreement
"Doing as you please," says Miss Traphagen, "being absolutely yourself, that is the way to preserve one's own individuality."

"Marriage should not interfere with it, but the trouble is that many people don't understand the value of individuality. Some women have to give up their work when two cannot agree on the value of going on with a career."

"But I believe that each one must work out his or her own salvation in matrimony or in a career, as it seems best to do."

A very picturesque person, Miss Traphagen. Tall, slender, with chestnut braids wrapped tight about her shapely head, she resembles the type of women Burns Jones, the great English painter, loved to portray.

"More simplicity in life would help us all," she continued. "The trouble with many modern women, not business women of course, is that they like to ape the styles and mannerisms of the society women or the nouveaux riches. They are content to follow a leader."

"One's own real self is the pearl of great price and should not be relinquished."

"My husband moved over here from Fifty-ninth street."

"Why? Oh, because I didn't like Fifty-ninth street!" she explained, with a twinkle.

"These separate houses are studios Nos. 32 and 33, near enough for companionship, far enough apart for two careers to keep on flourishing."

"We'll keep on doing whatever we like, and both will retain our old friends."

"I must use my maiden name, for my work is known in connection with it, so it would be foolish to change it."

Mrs. C. M. Sparr and Mrs. I. N. East of South Jackson street, who have been spending the week at Alamitos Bay, are expected to return to Glendale Saturday.

BRITISH WILL SEEK MEANS TO ASSURE PEACE AT PARLEY

Welcome Plan to Discuss Arms in Big Conference This Month

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Great Britain will seek a means of assuring world peace through the Washington arms conference, Austen Chamberlain, government spokesman, declared in the house of commons today.

"The policy of the British is to seek peace and to insure it, earnestly hope the conference will bring relief to an overburdened world," Chamberlain declared during the debate on a motion to place the house on record as approving the conference.

Chamberlain expressed "profound regret" that Premier Lloyd George would be unable to depart for Washington immediately but said he hoped the premier would be able to assume leadership of the British delegation later. Lloyd George had planned to sail tomorrow but was detained by the critical Irish situation.

Chamberlain said the British had received President Harding's invitation to the conference "with an unanimity of thankfulness difficult to express in words."

TWO NEW HOMES ARE NOW BEING PLANNED

Plans and specifications for two new homes in Glendale are being prepared by the George M. Lindley Co., architects and construction engineers who will also receive sub-bids for the construction work. One of the bids, a five-room colonial house, will be built at 305 North Cedar street for Lester H. Jones at an estimated cost of $4000. The other is a two-story Dutch colonial house to be built at 349 West Milford street for H. H. Leeper at a cost of $4500.

SELLS BIG FARM

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 4.—The Edgemoor farm, at Santee, near here, one of the most famous stock farms in the west has been sold by Walter Dupee, owner. G. L. Strobeck of San Diego is the purchaser and the price is reported to be between $250,000 and $300,000. The farm is stocked with blooded Guernsey cattle, one animal alone being valued at $40,000.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC GIVEN PERMIT TO OPERATE BUS

Privilege Extended to Jan. 1st, Account of Plan to Change Old Ordinance

Acting on the report of Chief of Police Martin, the city council Thursday night granted the Pacific Electric Land Co. a permit and license to operate a bus line in Glendale until January 1, 1922. The reason for limiting the date was explained by Mayor Robinson, who said that after the first of the year the ordinance governing the operation of busses will be amended and the license fee raised. The city is now receiving $12 a year as license fee for this business. In his report, the chief of police said that it should be granted providing the company is willing to comply with the bus ordinance and that the busses should be operated on a regular time schedule.

A. A. Smith representing the Pacific Electric Land Co., a subsidiary company of the Pacific Electric railroad, informed the council that after a check of the population and the business here, the land company has ordered a second bus. The first plan of the company was to start with but one bus.

SHADES OF J. B. CORN IT WAS A HAIR MAN

"Hist! There he goes! The man with the black satchel!" He aroused the hopes of some residents of the city whose palates were longing for a taste of the drop that cheers and tangles up the feet. They thought at last a bootlegger who carried his sock with him was operating in Glendale, but, as the poet has written:

"It was ever thus in childhood's happy hour—
We've watched our fondest hopes decay."

Instead of a merchant with a stock of good spirits, the mysterious stranger proved to be Stanley R. eHrdman of 118 North Louise, who manufactures hair goods and the bag contained only samples of his work.

Mr. eHrdman says that nine-tenths of a woman's beauty is in her hair and that he thinks that he is entitled to nine-tenths of the credit for the beauty of Glendale women.

A SONG ON MILO WHEAT

That wife who thought they'd have a change
And try some other food,
Saw her husband looking down his nose
As though not in good mood.
She quickly noticed something wrong
And said why can't you eat?
He looked straight at his wife and said
Have you no MILO WHEAT?

CHORUS

For all the folks who eat this food
I'm sure you will hear say
For strength, and health, and every ill
It's best we know today
We're living now on MILO WHEAT,
Our bank account will grow
For we can have a good square meal
For three cents now you know.

And then she saw her baby boy
Had pushed his plate aside,
She thought she'd make him eat it—
But he set there and cried.
Her daughter then looked up and said
"I surely love my MILK."
For after eating MILO WHEAT
I cannot get this stuff.

H. C. Daniels has sold his grocery and meat business to H. W. Mueller of St. Louis, Mo., who will take charge in a few days. The sale came as a great surprise to Mr. Daniels' friends, as he has been conducting a business that in point of accommodation, service and good products is second to none in this section. After a short stay in Southern California he will go back to Illinois for a visit, and may again return to Southern California. Mr. Mueller is a live merchant and will be a valuable acquisition to Eagle Rock.

DAMAGED

To be successful first have a plan, absolutely clear all the way through. Everything can be found out, for universal mind is everywhere and always at our disposal. How does one get into touch with universal intelligence? According to the power within our minds will success be achieved. Many of the most eminent business men in the country feel that they owe their success to their practice of reserving their mental power for a definite reflection, not for a negative or hypnotic condition, but for complete relaxation. The body is a universe within itself, a great dimly understood force, get it quiet, get the co-operation of every cell in the body, for each cell has intelligence. Sit perfectly still, for 15 minutes at first, training the will to control the body. Assume an easy posture, both feet on the floor, arms at the sides, relax the body, under control, lengthen the time gradually until after some months an hour may be devoted to this seclusion, then bring the mind under control. Fix in your thoughts the details of the thing you seriously want to do, not once or a few times, but persistently, with faith and determination. This, through the law of attraction, will draw universal power to the desire and it will surely come to pass. This is the almanac or passing fad, it is a scientific method of capturing the industry at whose success the world travels, many gifted in other channels of endeavor, rely on the silent hour for their inspiration and the fulfillment of their cherished hopes.

ARMS DELEGATES PREPARE PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—American arms parley delegates, with the opening of the great conference a week off, are rushing to completion a program which will reveal the exact extent to which they believe it is practical for the United States to limit its armament. This is planned not only for the exemplification of America's sincerity upon entering the conference, but to serve as a guide to other nations in framing their limitation program.

Meanwhile, foreign delegates are arriving daily and anxiously looking to America to take the lead in the parley. So far, all have expressed glowing hopes for the success of the conference. America's capital is decking itself as for a holiday in honor of the double function, Armistice Day and the opening of the conference.
